RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was again rising yesterday, and last evening there were 6 feet 5 inches water in the canal and  $4\frac{1}{2}$  feet in the pass on the falls. The weather continues very pleasant. The thermometer yesterday stood at 78 in the shade.

The Mississippi at St. Louis was falling on Friday with eight feet water in the channel to Cairo.

The T. C. Twichell .- The departure of this steamer has been postponed till this evening, when she will positively leave. She is an exseilent boat and has fine officers. Capt. Fawsett is her commander, and Mr. Fuller presides at the

The Rainbow .- This is the day on which the Rainbow takes her departure for Evansville and Henderson. She has always a full compliment of passengers. Her accommodations, table, and speed, are unexceptional.

The Harrison Bridges leaves for Green river this evening from the city wharf.

We are indebted to the clerk of the Belle Quigley for a copy of the boat's manifest.

The Carrier is merely intended as a freight cat, but she has nevertheless a neat cabin, and immediately back of it an apartment for passengers which may be termed a second-class cabin.

Her dimensions are as follows: length of huil 200 feet, beam 33 feet, and depth of hold 6 feet. Her draught light is less than 2 feet, and she can carry a large freight. The hull was built by Messrs. Howards, of Jeffersonville. Her machinery, built by Glover, Ainslie, & Co., of this city, consists of two engines, of 7 feet stroke, and cylinders 21 inches in diameter .-She has two of the largest kind of boilers, and a doctor. The cabin was built by Messrs. Mc-Claran & Cogshell, and the blacksmithing was done by Billings & Co. Messrs, Briner, Porter, & Co. executed the painting, which is remarkably well done. The upholstery came from the establishment of Mrs. Devinney, the carpets, &c., from John Simm. The whole boat reflects credit on her designer, Capt. Draffen, and those who constructed and furnished

The R. M. Patten arrived last night with a tolerably good freight. We are indebted to Mr. Pope, her clerk, for a copy of the manifest. She will probably leave on Saturday.

THE OPENING OF THE MECHANICS' FAIR To-NIGHT .- The third annual exhibition of the ter's Bottom, and Mrs. Ormsby Hite, of this Mechanics' Institute commences to-night, and city, have sent us specimens of the same variebids fair to surpass its predecessors. We hope every one who takes any interest in the prosperity of Louisville, or who feels any pride in the renown of the commercial emporium of Kentucky, will show their interest and pride by securing the perfect success of this exhibition. Mr. of extensive cultivation. Ford has already displayed such talent in the fields of literature, that he has won a fame of which a veteran literateur might be proud. His admirable critical essay on De Quincy is a production of rare merit, and gives noble promise of a high career for its author.

Let our readers remember that the exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute opens to-night, and Mr. Ford's address will be made at half-past 7

Mr. A. G. Fitzhugh, the agent of the Board of Directors of the Washington Monument at our national capital, desires us to state that he will attend all the agricultural fairs yet to be held during this fall in Kentucky, for the purpose of soliciting contributions for the monument. He desires also to acknowledge the receipt from the treasurer of the Southwestern Agricultural and Mechanical Association of the amount collected by them for the monument at their last annual fair. Boxes for voluntary contribution will be placed at the fair grounds of the Southwestern Agricultural and Mechanical Association during their fair soon to be held, and also at the exhibition hall of the Mechanics' Institute during their present annual exhibition. It is scarcely necessary for us to do more than to remind the citizens of Kentucky of this opportunity of aiding the erection of this memorial of a grateful nation to the venerated father of his country. The psesent Board of Directors of the monument are actively engaged in pushing forward the work, and are calling upon their countrymen to furnish them with the means to prosecute it steadily to a speedy completion.

> MAP OF NASHVILLE .- We are indebted to Messrs. Hart & Mapother, civil engineers, for a beautiful chart of the city of Nashville. Messrs. H. & M. are the gentlemen who have published the excellent map of our own city.

The Agricultural Association rented eleven of their booths on the fair grounds yesterday, with the privilege to the lessee to furnish the dinner during the fair, at $800.

Lagrange Peach .- This is a famous large, white, free-stone peach. The specimens received were grown upon rather flat, moist land, which we think causes in the fruit an astringent, bitter character, but upon high dry land it is one of the finest peaches of the season.

Hart's Pippin .- This is said to be a seedling apple, and is from the farm of Col. W. P. Hart, of Woodford county, Ky. It is of the Pippin family. Fruit large; skin greenish yellow. Flesh remarkably fine grained, with a rich juicy flavor. This apple is so tender when ripe that it will burst open in falling from the tree. We think it much superior to the true Fall Pippin, which is sufficient praise for any apple.

Mr. Isaac Lewis, of Hopkinsville, has sent us a package of apples of extraordinary beauty. Size large; skin exceedingly smooth and of the most beautiful red, deepening in shade on the sunny side. Quality good, but hardly first-rate, they having become considerably wilted before they came to hand. The name is entirely unknown to us.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.
In one dpodecimo rolume, neatly bound in cloth. Price $1.

THE anthor of this Interesting American novel is among the meet intellectual of living writers. It required the genins of the author to have grasped, with such extraordinary force, the cesses and circomstances through which her story moves. No other writer rould have thrown as strong as individual life into place and locality. Her passionate fearless nature, her wild warm heart, are transfused into the magic world she has created, with such an intesse earnestness, when no one can enter without yielding to the irresistible feacination of her powers. The book is a thrilling transcript of nadonbted experience. The characters introduced into her work are flesh and blood realities. These graphic life revelations have created a profound liferary sensation not equaled by any other production since the appearance of the "Scarlet Letter" and "Jane Eyre," and are "more talked about than any other novel of our times.

WHEAT—Thin Sowing.—Thin sowing of wheat may be profitably pursued on soils which have been thoroughly sub-soiled and underhave been thoroughly sub-soiled and under-drained, but cannot succeed with certainty in shallow-ploughed land with a compact sub-soil. The causes of this difference may be thus under-As soon as wheat has grown to its first joint a new set of roots appear, called tillers, which travel horizontally for a time and throw which travel norizontally for a time and time with up new shoots, and thus a single grain of wheat, with full tillering, may furnish one hundred stalks, each of which will armitself with proper roots for descent in a well disintegrated soil; and if the soil be deeply and properly prepared, as suggested above, it would be difficult to ascertain which is the original shoot and which has arisen from tillering. In shallow ploughed land, with a sub-soil not disintegrated, and particularly if wet, the tillering will discontinue as soon as any one root from the stool shall reach the surface of the sub-soil. These will turn brown and no new tillering will afterwards occur. It is for this reason that thin sowing will not answer on badly prepared soils, and it is also for this reason that under-drained and sub-soiled meadours never the out for as fast as sub-soiled meadows never run out; for as fast as any stool or crown of roots be broken by the feet of the cattle, it must cease to tiller if any portion of the root is in contact with the subfree for root to travel in a proper degree of humidity, and freely percolated by atmosphere, new shoots will replace old ones, and thus the meadow is continually!renewed. Soil, so premeadow is continually renewed. Soil, so pre-pared before being put down to grass as to insure these conditions, may be kept in grass for a century, by simply using such soluble top-dressings as can enter the soil in early spring with the early rains, so as to secure continued tillering and fertilization.—Working Farmer.

TUESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 25, 1855.

ARE THE MANY WISER THAN THE FEW?-Mr. Bancroft delivered an oration before the New York Historical Society on the occasion of its late semi-centennial celebration, in which, addressing himself to the necessity of the progress of the race, he said:

The life of an individual is but a breath; it comes forth like a flower, and fleeth like a shadow. Were no other progress, therefore, possible than that of the individual, one age would have little advantage over another. But as every man partakes of the same faculties, and is consubstantial with all, it follows that the race also has an existence of its own; and this existence becomes richer, more varied, free, and complete, as time advances. Common sense implies, by its very name, that each individual is to contribute some share towards the general intelligence. The many are wiser than the few; the multitude than the philosopher; the race than the individual; and each successive age than its predecessor.

A writer in the Church Review, who criticises the entire oration very unsparingly, thus cavils at this particular passage:

But our special concern is with the sentence, "The many are wiser than the few; the multi-tude than the philosopher." This, we take leave to say, is, in any pertinent and reasonable view of the import of the language, sheer absurdity and untruth. It is one of that sort of utterances that always move our spleen—smart sayings, with a certain ringing tone in them, but as empty of truth as "the sounding brass and tinkling cymhal" ere of "charity"—fine sentences, which, when grasped and subjected to a search—the company of the co ing inquest, are obliged to collapse into drivel-ing platitudes in order to save the smallest fraction and semblance of meaning and truth. "The many are wiser than the few." What does he mean? Wisdom is a relative attribute when predicated of men. Some may have more of it, some less; some a great deal, some very little, some less; some a great deal, some very little, some, possibly, none at all, or so little as to be ranked as unwise or foolish men. Does Mr. Bancroft mean that the number of wise men is greater than the number of foolish men? Perhaps it is. It is to be hoped it is. But that is not his meaning; it would reduce his sharp saying to a pointiess platitude. What does he mean, then? Who are "the few?" that he has in his minut? Are they the comparatively ignorant his mind? Are they the comparatively ignorant and uncultivated? No. Are they the compara-tively instructed and cultivated? Yes. And who are "the many"? Are they the more in-structed? No. Are they the less instructed?

His utterance then resolves itself into the assertion that the ignorant many are wiser than the instructed few-which is either a flat contradiction or else a paradox. If taken as a contradiction, we need pursue the matter no further; if taken as a paradoxical utterance of a truth, we deny that there is any truth in it. On what ground can the ignorance or unwisdom of the many be pronounced wiser than the wisdom of the few? Is it that the less cultivated many are individually each wiser than any of the cultivated few? No. Is it that the collective wisdom of the many is greater than the collective wisdom of the few? That might be the case provided, in the first place, that the decisions or conduct of a collective body could be wiser than the wisdom of the individuals composing it—a thing likely to be when the water of a stream can continue to raise itself higher than its fountain, and, provided, in the second place, that wisdom were anything to be measured by bulk or weight. Under these two conditions, but not otherwise, this and the other utterances of this sentence-"the multitude wiser than the philosopher: the race than the individual"-may come to have some meaning and truth, instead of heing, what they now are, absurdly untrue.

Now, undoubtedly, the perpetrator of this hypercriticism has very legihly written himself down an ass. He has clearly erected his whole tottering superstructure of sneer and cavil upon a stupid misappreliension of the accomplished thinker he assumes to chide. Mr. Bancroft, in the passage referred to, most unquestionably did not design to contrast the ignorant many with the cultivated few, as his splenetic rewiewer affects to think, but simply the totality lars, showing an increase over the valuation of great net-work of railroads which intersect the whole country. It will stand without a rival, of humanity with its constitutive elements—the last year of fifteen millions three bundred and for it can have none whole with its parts. He ohviously meant only thirty-six thousand dollars. The rate of taxathat the sum of truth possessed by mankind in tion has been fixed at s-venty-seven cents on its integrity surpasses that possessed by its one hundred dollars, a reduction of 15 cents wisest individuals—a proposition so plain that from last year. it might well be deemed a "pointless platitude" if the orator had not employed it as a familiar link in his demonstration rather than a striking oracle or as an oracle of any sort. The immediate point in question was the necessity of the progress of the race. To establish this necessity, Mr. B., among other arguments, forcibly maintained that the race has an existence of its own, made up of the existence of every individual of every one of its countless generations, and that this existence, like a majestic river flowing seaward, grows broader and fuller and more free and perfect in its energies as it presses forward toward the eternal shore. The sentence that has strangely moved the "spleen" of his critic merely asserts, as if in parenthesis, and hy way of graceful emphasis, that this human tide is ever larger than its largest tributary rills. It is really but a rhetorical form-a figure of thoughtas innocent a sentence, indeed, as ever shipwrecked a critic. It is neither a contradiction nor a paradox nor anything that is absurd and untrue or that has the semblance of absurdity and untruth. It is just as little ohnoxious to this stricture as the reviewer's own assertion that "some men have a great deal of wisdom, some very little," a "saying" that might easily have been "smart" if its author had known how to make it so. If Mr. Bancroft expresses himself in "fine sentences," it is only because he is a master of style and writes no other kind. The literary world will cheerfully forgive his critic whenever he chooses to sin in like manner. The whole thing is manifestly too trivial for a moment's grave attention. The reviewer be "wiser than the wisdom of the individuals composing it," when the "water of a stream can contrive to raise itself higher than its fountain," He might as philosophically say that the properties of a compound will be to the western District every ten days. We hope the Council will adopt them for every part of the city.—Cin. Gaz. thinks that the wisdom of a collective hody will the properties of a compound will be higher could have produced that masterly instrument. the collective treasures of our literature are no excused for asking the reason. Here is a road, richer than the treasures of Irving or of Longfellow, ample as they are. He possibly conceives that the human hrain is as wise as the wisest fibre composing it, and that it will be wiser "when the water of a stream can continue to raise itself higher then its fountain." Carto raise itself higher than its fountain." Certainly no man of fine sense and the slightest candor could have glided into such a tissue of ridiculous blunders. We advise this spitsire and we hope that all have made up their minds to attend. We expect that ours will eclipse every other fair in the West. We have recent ly returned from the Lexington fair, which was surpass it. We presume that every manufacturer will have specimens of his goods, of whatever kind, on the ground; cloths from the family loom as well as from the factory of 10,000 factory, from a hob-nail to a steam engine of fifty-horse power. We wish it to be distinctly country merchants that even the article of cowbells which they go to Boston to buy are of the manufacture of Louisville. Of cattle we have the promise of a large number of the fluest in the State; in horses, no section of the country can excel us. Of other domestic animals we where and of the most real while ruminating on their past exploits, sweetly expect the largest number, and of the most perfect kinds. Of people from every part of our Horace: "Beatus ille, qui procul negotus," &c. own State, and from the neighboring States, we But lest these gentlemen may become alarmed own State, and from the neighboring States, we expect to meet here thousands and tens of thousands, and, though last not least, we expect that Louisville and the adjoining counties will road," I will try to say a word to calm their send forth in the greatest numbers the most beautiful ladies, each day of the exhibition, that ever graced an amphitheater. Then let everybody with his wife and daughters attend.

EMINENCE FAIR .- The fifth annual fair of the Union Agricultural and Mechanical Association will be held on the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, and 6th days of October, at the fair grounds, near Eminence, Henry county, Ky.

The President of this association assures us that there will he a large number of imported premium cattle from Fayette and Bourbon counties, and we presume that every other interest will be well represented. Shelby and Henry are among the richest counties in Kentucky, and no portion of the State contains a more intelligent and enterprising set of farmers; we therefore expect this will be one of the best exhibitions in the State. We advise everybody to go to the Eminence fair.

THE ADVANCE IN SUGARS .- The rise in sugars since January, according to the New York gars since January, according to the New York ergy, increased receipts, prudent management. Post, has been 50 per cent., and this owing not and decreased expenditure can never make half so much to the diminished supply, which only so much to the diminished supply, which only applies to New Orleans descriptions, Cuhas being plentiful, but to the great increase of demand throughout the country for consumption and stock. The unfavorable harvest of 1854 led to a great contraction in the grocery business, as well as in the dry goods; and dealers worked down their stock to the lowest point possible, compelled by necessity rather than by policy, as collections of debts being had, credit was dimin-

WEALTH OF BOSTON .- The assessor's report gives the total valuation of property in Boston

The official report of the comptroller of New York shows that the valuation of real and personal estate in that city is $486,998,278, about double that of her sister city.

Surrender of John Hancock .- Some time since an Abolitionist by the name of Hancock jumped the claim of a Missourian named Jones, who has since been appointed sheriff of Douglas T., in which the city of Lawrence is situated, and declared he would hold it at the peril of his life; and in order to make good he assertion, summond his minious to his support, forty in number; Jones took with him fifteen of his friends, "Border Ruffians," and demanded their surrender. Hancock told him that he was proud say that he was a lineal descendant of the illustrious John Hancock, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and would never surrender. Jones then turned to his men and commanded them to bring their guns to bear and commanded them to bring their guns to bear upon the enemy, and then gave them thirty seconds to give up the claim, in which time Hancock "caved." When Jones sang out in a voice of thunder, "John Hancock, descendant of the illustrious John Hancock, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, do I understand you to say that you surrender?" Hancock answered: "I want it distinctly understand that I surrender." Independence Journal stood that I surrender."-Independence Journal.

A Great Lumberman .- The greatest lumberman in America is William Price of Quebec. He has erected a wharf at river Du Loup, 120 miles below Quebec, at a cost of $120,000, accommodate his lumber business. He is the most extensive dealer in North America; has 30 saws running near that place; 40 at St. John's Bay; 22 in constant operation at Ha-ha Bay, and at the Saguenay Rapids 10 more. He also purchases some millions of feet from the Otta-It is said he has furnished, for several years past, employment for from 2,000 to 3,000 men, and freighted over a hundred ships annually with lumber for European markets.

The street-sweeping machine is rapidly gain-

Collars .- There are 2,100 women engaged, in than the properties of the simples composing it, at the same time, and not hefore. He probably supposes that the wisest member of the collective body that formed our Federal Constitution that formed our Federal Constitution single gentlemen.

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] THE JEFFERSONVILLE RAILROAD.

entire faculty cannot rise above the wisdom of Jeffersonville railroad has fallen to one-third of the Greek professor. He fancies, perhaps, that its nominal value, I hope a stockholder may be running upon a line of easy and cheap construc-tion from the Falls of the Ohio in the direction of the heart of Indiana, and its stock is only going on in the face of increased receipts, de-crease of floating debt, and an improved condi-tion of the road. The receipts show a steady increase from the beginning, and I am informed ridiculous blunders. We advise this spitsire on good authority that they have heen this year critic to husband his acumen and to let his thus far fully thirty per cent. in advance upon the same period last year. So that what hard times have done good times ought certainly to undo, especially as there is a larger crop in the country to he transported than ever before, and the husiness better adapted to the road.

But another cause more radical and serious in its character can be presented, and that is that although this road begins at a proper point, and leads off in the right direction, it terminates ly returned from the Lexington fair, which was without a terminus. Instead of going to the a most successful one, hut we expect ours to far center of Indiana, itstops on the road. It stops at a country town of fifteen hundred inhalitants, instead of going to the capital of Indiana, a city of twenty thousand inhabitants. It gets almost within hearing of the roar of nearly a dozen railroads diverging to all parts of the State, and spindles; specimens from the workshop and the in fact to all parts of the Union; and then, as featory from a hob-pail to a steam engine of if inspired with a sudden taste for the country, it stops among the cornfields. Here we have the great source of the trouble. If any stockholdunderstood by our city merchants and by our er wishes to put his finger on what hurts him, let him do so; there it is.

Now for my part, as a stockholder, I would prefer that the good old men, who have always had this enterprise safely tucked under them, enjoy rural felicity and quiet, and exclaim with at such a proposition, and may pop up out of their seats, as doubtless they have many times Time was, when by the partial legislation of Indiana her trade was directed in an unnatural direction, to wit, through Madison. And the two rivals for her trade, Louisville and Cincinnati, were shut out from her borders, except by that circuitous avenue. And then it was that "the Madison road" was a mighty name in Wall street. But Cincinnati has built new routes to Indianapolis, and the glory of the Madison road has departed. Instead of lording it over all the roads in Indiana, httle and big, there are none now so low as to do her reverence, except the Jeffersonville. This one she has systematically snubbed from the heginning. And now the Jeffersonville is only too happy to sneak in hindmost of all the roads, into the union depot at Indianapolis, hitched to the tail of a thing which has become an object of derision. So I say that if the ghost of such a defunct concern should alarm those gentlemen in the manner that it always has heretofore, and Edinburgh should not be sufficiently quiet for their tender nerves, they might proceed up to Shelby-ville on their pet branch, where I am sure they will find quiet enough.

To do the acting president of the road justice, I believe that he has always heen an advocate of the extension of the road to Indianapolis. And the result will prove that economy and enthe road cannot be extended to Indianapolis is a humbug. If the directory say so, they only establish their own incompetency. The Madison road is no rival of the J ffersonville, because Madison is no rival of Louisville. renceburg road is the rival of the Jeffersonville road, becau-e Cincinnati is the rival of Louisville. And while Louisville allows the enter-prises of Cincinnati to be successful and permits her own to remain incomplete, she must acknowledge the superiority of her rival. Finish the road to Indianapolis; that is the true policy. Give the thing a head and a tail both, and not let one and be forever stuck down the throat of the Madison road. When the road is finished, if it ever shall be, it will then stand the connect-

AN ELEPHANT WORKING .- We passed an elephant working on the road, and it was most in-teresting to watch the half-reasoning brute; he was tearing out large roots from the ground by means of a chain and hook, fastened round his neck by a species of collar. He pulled like a man, or rather like a number of men, with a succession of steady hauls, throwing his whole weight into it, and almost going down on his knees, turning round now and then to see what progress he was making. Really the instinct displayed by the elephant in its state is little short of reason in its fullest sense. There is no doubt they do think, and also act apon experience and memory, and their capacity seems to increase in an extraordinary degree from their intercourse with man.

The remarkable nicety and trouble they take squaring and arranging the blocks of hewn stone when building a bridge is incredible unless seen; they place them with as much skill as any mason, and will return two or three times to give the finishing touches when they think the work not quite perfect. They retire a few yards, and consider what they have effected, and you may almost fancy you can detect them turning their sagacious old noddles on one side and shutting one eye in a knowing manner to detect any irregularity in the arrangement. Sidney Smith's anecdotes of elephants' reason, in his lectures on moral philosophy, although most astonishing, do not fail for want of corrohoration.

Paid for Whipping a Boy .- A few days since, one of the drivers of a team used for cars on the Market street railroad caught the son of a tavern keeper on one of the cars while son of a tavern keeper on one of the cars while it was in motion. He took the boy off and gave him several cuts with his whip. Several of the tavern keeper's neighbors saw the act and made quite a noise about it, and informed the father of the boy. He (the father) let on to be very indignant, and told them if they would show him the driver he would settle with him. The driver was watched for, and when seen the father was informed of it. The team was stopped and the driver invited into the tavern and asked if he was the man that had struck the how. if he was the man that had struck the boy.

"Yes," replied the driver, "and I shall do it again if I catch him on the cars." The indignant father put his hand violently in his pocket and drew out a dollar, which he gave the driver for the good service be had appropriate. for the good service he had performed.

DR. KING'S DISPENSARY.

DR A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last twenty-eight years, has opened a Dispensary on Market street, between First and Second, nearly opposite the Ecoles Hones, for the treasment of Private Diseases, such as Goner-toes, Syphile, and all diseases of the skin and other derangements grawing out of neglector imperfect cure. His long experience ann aucease enables him to act with conditione. All those who may conside their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually onred and avery vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions. Statistures of old or recant date effectually corred in a few days by an operation which cause no pain. Where a stricture caises, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out if it, brought on, in many cases by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive induspence of the pe sions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subjecturate for either businesses resolver, and causing premature old age.

AP Persone abroad, by writing and atating their case, with a few cuclosed (post-paid), can have the medicine sent to their address, with processary directions for using the same.

The filb'EN PATH, by Marion Harland. One slegant I imo. Price $125.

The following notice of this work, which we find in the Riebmond Engirer, is doubtless from the generous pen of Mrs. Anna Coza kitchie, and contains a just tribute to the literary talents of the most snecessful female writer which Virginia has yet produced:

"Let this node produced:

"Let the node produced:

"Let the node produced:

"I have a produced to the same of the capanding snashold companion of every true-hearted Virginian. Foster this gifted daughter of the Sonth with the expanding snashold companion to walk in her atepa, emplayedes of praise—stimulate undeveloped genius, which has never yet 'penned its inspiration' to walk in her atepa, emplayeder schievements and share her honors—let Virginia produce a few more anch writers, and the cry that the South has no literature of its own is silenced forever! The Hidden Path is a work that North or Sonth, East or West may point to with the hager of honest price and say 'Our daughter sends this measage to the world—pure this lidden Path which leads to the great goal of eternal peace."

We visited the Mechanicshall this morning and found everything in a forward state of progress. The arrangements are perfect and tne officers of the Association, Messrs. Stancliff, Probston, Green, and Vogdes, deserve thanks for their untiring energy and success. The gallery affords a splendid promenade all around the Hall. Among the articles put up this morning, we noticed several elegant chan- and John P. Smith appointed Sccretary. daliers, of ingenious workmanship, from Williams & Co., of this city. We ask the visitor's attention to them. Mr. Brainard has a graud parlor piano, from Chickering of Boston, of a unique model. It is a superh instrument.

In response to the notice in the papers of Friday last, a few citizens interested in establishing a Dispensary in the eastern part of the city me the office of the Trustees of the Public Schools on Monday afternoon.

Col. Wm. Duerson was called to the Chair

The Chair stated that the object of the meeting was to put the Dispensary into immediate operation, and showed the advantages of such an institution, as an auxilliary to the relief and employment association, as also a means of keeping many persons and families out of the hospital and almshouse, by affording medical aid in the incipient stages of disease.

John P. Smith then moved that two medical gentlemen be appointed to take charge of the Dispensary and dispense the medicines, and that the Chair make the appointments, which was concurred in, and the Chair appointed Drs. Flint and Harding.

Mr. Coleman Daniel then moved that a collecting committee of three, together with a Treasurer, be appointed by the Chair, which motion prevailed, and the Chair appointed Drs. Cooke, Breckiuridge, and Bartlett as the col-lecting committee, and Mr. T. L. Jefferson as Treasurer.

The meeting then adjourned to Friday afternoon, 4 o'clock, to meet at the same place. WM. DUERSON, President.

John P. Smith, Sec'y. It is hoped that an immediate response will be made to the collectors, as nothing is wanted but the means to place the Dispensary in active Braithwaite's Retrospect for July.

To medical men the great advantage offered by the Retrospect is its embodying in a confined space all the cream of Medical periodicals, sparing them the labor of wading through many values filled with much trivial and uninteresting matter, which must be perused in order to reach what is realized, the same of the secretic publications of the day. To families and private individuals it is scarcely less valuable than to the professional reader, since, although purely and in the highest degree scientific, its contents are ye presented in a style so simple and unaffected that they are comprehensible to any ordinary intellect. al3jsb POLLARD, PRATHER, & SMITH. Chickering's Parlor Grand Pianos,

BRAINARD BROTHERS, Jacob's Block, 74 Fourth street, near Main

The Parlor Grand is the very perfection of all Grand Planos, and is particularly adapted to the wants of professors, amateurs, and others who may object to the great size of a Full Grand.

The unique and beautiful style of this instrument and its perfect fitness for the parier are commentations that will not apply to the ordinary Grand Plano. For, while it combines the tone, power, action, and appearance of a Full Grand, Ithas the delicate touch of Chickering; Square Planos, asknowledged by every one superior to any other, and, though of seven octave compass, is still smaller in size than the semi-Grand Plano of 6% octaves, as it occupies but little more space than a 7 cetave Square Plano.

The peculiar and compact construction of the Parior Grand, an invention of the late lamented Jonas Chickering, is a sure guarantee of its durability. And the complete success of this new and truly beautiful instrument fully anstalas the reputation of its laventer and mannfacturers.

We have already sold several of these lastruments in this olty, and, to meet the increased demand for them, have arranged for a constant supply.

To these superb Piano-Fortes we historiem of the Parior Grand before purchasing. They are made only by Chickering & Sons, and can be had only of onresteves in this city, and Space and the Parior Grand before purchasing.
